

Zara (aka Munch)

After visiting Zara (AKA Munch now) several times I couldn't wait to take her home! We anticipated that she would hide (because of her background). Surprisingly she didn't! She sniffed out her surroundings cautiously, and before we knew it she was purring up a storm. During the day she still hides whenever she hears a strange noise. Once we come home and settle in for the night she is out and about. She loves bedtime and coming to sleep with us. By the time morning comes she has settled herself on the futon. As soon as she sees we're awake, it's back to purring and "Pet me! Pet me!" time. She doesn't skip a beat with meal times either. She's been eating like a champ since we brought her home. Everyday we can see her becoming a bit more comfortable than she was the day before! She enjoys her alone time, but also loves having the reassurance that we're giving her. She's in a happy home now.
